

Welcome to your Workplace Insights report. You were asked to take assessments powered by Criteria Corp, and this report provides an overview of your personalized results. All of your responses were combined to create a unique profile for you. Within the report, it's important to know that there are no "good" or "bad" qualities. The results are designed to help you heighten your self-awareness and to understand how to relate better to others in the workplace.

gustavo's Report Summary

gustavo

General Population

Notable Traits

You can be described as:

Goal-Oriented

Values achievement, sets goals, and prioritizes achieving them

Assertive

Bold, forceful and sometimes dominant presence; not inclined to defer

Competitive

Innate drive to win, measures performance in comparison to others

Intellectually Curious

Creative and unafraid of experimentation, interested in learning and exploration

Work, Communication & Interaction Style

Very Goal-Oriented.

As someone who tends to be driven by exceeding expectations, you are likely to be seen as a high achiever. As a result, you are likely to have excellent follow-through on tasks when appropriately engaged.

Very Assertive.

You are very comfortable leading group discussions and openly speak your mind, with colleagues likely describing you as having a direct style of expression. You have a strong preference for an open and undiluted approach when voicing your opinion.

Very Motivated.

You are likely to have a very strong inner drive, which should see you viewed as driven and committed. Team members will generally describe you as motivated to achieve your goals.

Temperament, Attitudes & Outlook

Very Competitive.

Compared to most people, you have a very strong drive to win. You are likely to be highly motivated by competition and will strive to meet and exceed external targets. In work settings, highly competitive individuals often excel in fields such as sales but are sometimes less well suited to roles like customer service.

Very Intellectually Curious.

You are far more open to new experiences than the average person. You tend to not only embrace exploring and learning but go out of your way to actively seek these opportunities. You are likely to have a wide range of interests and likely have a strong preference for novel experiences over routine. You are also far more likely than others to embrace change, and engage in self-reflection and creative or imaginative thought.

Strengths & Potential Challenges

Strengths

- You are likely to possess a very strong drive to achieve. As a result, you are likely to have excellent follow-through.
- You are a highly motivated person with a strong inner drive.
- You are highly competitive by nature, with an innate desire to win, which will serve you well in roles where performance measurement is valued. You are comfortable taking risks when required.
- You are direct and open when expressing your opinion. You will speak your mind.
- Ambiverts like you tend to be flexible enough to have potential suitability for a variety of roles, including those that emphasize social interactions and those that do not.
- You are likely well suited for roles that require a high degree of creativity, variety, or innovation. Others are likely to view you as an ideas person or experimenter. You are also likely to thrive in roles that evolve or change frequently.
- You are likely to display an effective balance of patience and impatience in pursuing opportunities or navigating frustrations with work-related tasks or projects.
- A high level of self-confidence suggests you will generally be free from self-doubt.

Potential Challenges

- While your high drive for achievement may have led to many successes, you may be particularly uncomfortable with potential failure. This discomfort may drive you to overwork yourself or be overly perfectionistic at times, leaving you vulnerable to burnout.
- Your highly competitive nature may, at times, be seen by others as unfriendly. You should find ways to ensure you are competing as a team towards shared goals, as opposed to competing against your team mates.
- Your frank and direct style of expression may at times be viewed by others as too strong.
- You may find that you become unmotivated quickly when required to do repetitive tasks. You may also find yourself getting lost in idea generation and may be less focused on idea execution.

Development Suggestions

Work Habits

Highly achievement-oriented by nature, you will likely benefit from taking on particularly challenging tasks to further optimize your effectiveness in a role. Taking on these challenges may also further refine your strengths and enable you to apply them for even greater impact.

Your strong inner motivation and drive are likely to see you do well in a variety of tasks, even in tasks that you do not find intrinsically enjoyable. This strong inner drive can be best utilized in high impact activities where your motivation should see you achieving strong outcomes.

Interaction Style

It may be useful to consider when your strong and direct approach may and may not be the most appropriate or effective way of interacting. While this approach can be beneficial at times, being overly assertive can alienate others and impact relationships at work. Finding a balance between expressing your views and inviting others to share their thoughts can help facilitate meaningful and productive collaboration.

Effective performance is often a combination of getting things done and interacting well with others. There are times when remaining focused on getting work done is the best approach and times when spending more time engaging with others is beneficial. It may benefit you to take a moment to consider the right balance for a particular job and where you may need to rebalance.

Temperament

While there is a time and a place for healthy competition, there is also a risk that being highly competitive may have a negative impact on developing good relationships with others. It may be beneficial for you to consider using your energy and enthusiasm for success to help others in their attainment of goals. This may help you foster valuable working relationships. You may also benefit from understanding that it's OK to lose and to fail - doing so can encourage growth, build resilience, and help shape future goals.

Persisting is an important characteristic in the accomplishment of tasks and deliverables. However, there may be times when trying a different approach is more beneficial than just trying harder in the same direction. Knowing when to step back and assess the effectiveness of one's approach, and being open to persisting in a new direction, can meaningfully contribute to accomplishing your objectives.

Attitudes & Outlook

You are likely to thrive in creative roles or where innovation is highly valued. However, you may become easily unmotivated when required to follow conventional methods for extended periods of time. You may benefit from identifying other aspects of your work that can motivate you during these times. Additionally, you are likely to have a tendency to offer complex solutions where a simpler solution is available. This can make your solution difficult for others to follow. So it may be beneficial for you to practice creating simple and practical solutions and designing them from other people's points of view.

When approaching a new task you may feel more confidence than is warranted. It's important to ensure that your confidence and self-assurance do not inhibit your willingness to prepare in advance. Often, success is the result of planning and effort.

Workplace Stressors & Motivators

The following section relates common workplace situations to your behavioral preferences, to better understand how your potential may be best realized. Situations that may be comfortable or motivating for some people may be stressful or de-motivating for others. Below is a list of common workplace situations together with an indication of how each may impact you.

